Case - Timothy N. Pfeiffer,
Subject - Homicide, New Brunswick, N.J., 312/undercover
Operative - 312.

November 22, 1922. Continuing on the above matter, as per instructions from Mr. DeM., Operative discontinued working at the International Motor Co.

At about 9.30 a.m. Operative proceeded to the Middlesex Lunchroom. Upon leaving the Middlesex Lunchroom, Operative proceeded about town visiting the Phillips Farm, also the railroad station, and then returned to the Middlesex Lunchroom again at 2 p.m.

While in the Middlesex Lunchroom at this time, Operative overheard several men speaking about a raid that had been made on Nelson St., and referred to the O'Brien sisters who run a sporting house at #262 Nelson Street. It would seem from the conversation overheard, that the raid was made so that the cops and the Officials could say that they were on the job, but nevertheless, it would seem that the Cops knew in advance concerning the raid, and had tipped the house off. The understanding it seems is, that after things quiet down in Somerville, N.J., that the house will open up again. It seems that the wild life in New Brunswick has subsided quite a bit in anticipation of a general shake-up. The general belief is that if things do not go right at Somerville, N.J., certain people in New Brunswick will make a big holler and the Officials will have to get on the job.

Upon leaving the Middlesex Lunchroom, Operative proceeded to the railroad station.

While at the railroad station, Operative entered in conversation with a man who informed Operative that he was waiting for a friend who was coming from Philadelphia. This particular man showed Operative a current issue of one of the newspapers which showed a picture of Dr. Hamborszky. This man then informed Operative that he knew Hamborszky well, and that Hall and Hamborszky used to go around together, and were fast friends - Furthermore, that Hambor-
